

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, the Almighty Father has in his Divine wisdom removed by death from the scene of earthly activity our beloved brother, W. W. Woodman; and

Be it resolved, that these expressions be tendered to the family and friends of Brother W. W. Woodman as a sincere and sympathetic demonstration of our grief and regret at his loss, not only to them but to the Fire Company and the county at large; and

Be it further Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Company in regular meeting, a copy be tendered to the widow of deceased, and also furnished to the local papers for publication.

Respectfully submitted,

POULTRY STUDIES

WIDE IN SCOPE.

In its efforts to encourage the broad development of poultry raising in the United States, the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture is conducting investigations to establish the best methods of raising many varieties of fowls. The present scope of the work includes not only the feeding, breeding, and care of ordinary poultry, but also the raising of pigeons, squabs, guineas, turkeys, and many other birds, including ostriches. The flesh of squabs, turkeys, guineas, geese, and ducks makes a valuable variety in the diet, and with wild fowls now becoming less available, it is important that a sufficient number of domestic birds be raised to keep the market constantly supplied. The problem now is a farm production, which requires expert knowledge if adequate supplies are to be continued.

An Associated Press dispatch from Paris says: "President Wilson spent Saturday morning at work in his private office. Instead of availing himself of the services of a stenographer he applied himself assiduously to the typewriter, which is taken as an indication that he was preparing some paper requiring the most thoughtful possible consideration." Perhaps he had come to the conclusion that he could spell and punctuate better than his stenographer, and was taking no chances.

A LESSON IN GEOGRAPHY AND AMERICANISM.

A gentleman from Uruguay, that scarcely ever mentioned little republic in South America, stated to a friend in the United States that he was a very good American, and gave as his reasons the following:

He says he starts the day by getting out of a bed made in Wisconsin; throws back the sheets made in South Carolina; steps on a rug made in Philadelphia; puts on his slippers from Massachusetts to take his bath in a tub from Pittsburgh. His stockings come from Georgia, collars from New York, underwear from Maryland, suspenders from Massachusetts. His house is kept by a Yale lock. He puts on his Philadelphia hat and rides in his American automobile to his office, with a desk from Michigan.

White pine from Mississippi is used in building his house; he partakes of salmon from Alaska; canned green corn from Maine and oysters from Louisiana; pineapples from Hawaii and canned fruit from California; or apples from Oregon and Washington at his meals, and he cuts the apple with a Massachusetts or a Connecticut knife. The enameled ware in his kitchen is from Indiana and his tobacco comes from North Carolina.

RARE FURNITURE IN

"THE PRUSSIAN CUR."

Never in any other motion picture has furniture so costly and massive been used as in "The Prussian Cur," which comes to the Warfield theatre next Monday. Some of this furniture actually came from the German embassy at Washington.

It required eight men to lift the magnificent bronze-inlaid desk which is seen in Ambassador Bernstorff's private office. This desk is valued at $5,000. One massive chair, carved on the back with the German eagle, was once in the Imperial Palace at Berlin. The library set used in the German embassy scene formerly adorned the home of one of the Vanderbilts.

They went at the invitation of a paving company that claims superior work in the street paving line, especially the durability of vitrified pavement. The interest in finding the best means of paving the main streets of our port is praiseworthy and the public cannot but appreciate the efforts of the city fathers.

"UNCLE SAM" AND THE HOME GARDEN

Well Known Civic Leader Shows How a Vegetable Garden Will Cut The Family Store Bill In Half

Atlanta, Ga.—(Special).—"Few people realize the actual money-saving power of the home vegetable garden and what it can be made to contribute in the way of food for the family table," says President H. G. Hastings, of the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, and the Southeastern Fair, in discussing the matter of food supply for the South in 1919.

"Uncle Sam, through the United States Department of Agriculture," said Mr. Hastings, "estimated the value of the vegetables produced last year in home gardens of the United States at three hundred and fifty million of dollars. This means that much actually saved by the garden makers from their store bills.

"Whenever there is lack of food or money to buy food, no matter whether it be due to world-wide food scarcity, boll weevil damage or other cause, the first word 'Uncle Sam' passes out to the sufferer is to make a good home garden. Why? Because the right kind of a home garden is the quickest, cheapest and best source of food supply there is.

"The great trouble here in the South is that our people don't take the home garden seriously enough, or give it the attention that its importance as a food producer and money-saver justifies. It is mostly made with a 'lick and a promise' and the cultivation and replanting it gets during the growing season is mostly of the unfulfilled promise kind.

"With the present and certain-to-be continued high food prices on the one hand, and the very great uncertainty as to the price that cotton or other cash crops will sell for next fall, it is a time above all others to play safe.

"This is no time to gamble on cotton. None of us can tell within 15 cents a pound what it will sell for next fall. The farmer who makes few or no store debts for food, producing his own and family needs on home acres, is safe regardless of cotton prices, and he is the only one who is safe.

"The right kind of a home garden maintained all through the season and given a square deal in the way of cultivation, is the greatest store-bill reducer on record. A quarter to half an acre garden for the average family will cut the store bill in half."

Castanets.

Castanets are musical instruments of percussion in the form of two hollow nut-shells, which are bound together by a band fastened on the thumb, and struck by the fingers to produce a thrilling sound in keeping with the rhythm of the music. The castanets were introduced into Spain by the Moors, where they retain the name of castanuelas, from their resemblance to the form of the chestnut. The castanets were once much used in the ballet and in the opera.

Welsh "Stafell."

Reference to a "stafell" in a recent West Wales breach of promise case puzzled the court. The "stafell" is the household linen usually brought by a Welsh bride to her new home. The custom, still practiced, is one of great antiquity. In early times a girl was not allowed to get married until she had spun the linen, and from it comes the term spinster. "Stafell" is now bought at the shop, to the old folks a degenerate innovation.

Goats Rout Evil Spirits.

Welsh farmers often keep two or three goats among their fine herds of cattle. There is a tradition that the presence of goats helps to keep off evil spirits, and so saves the cattle from disease. In some parts of Wales the presence of a donkey is believed to have the same effect. A more prosaic reason is that a goat amongst cattle keeps vermin from breeding on their skins.

Speed of Carrier Pigeons.

On fairly long journeys, say to 100 miles or more, the carrier pigeon will average a speed of from 37 to 43 miles an hour. The best horse in the world can only keep up a speed approximately that for six or seven minutes at most. The pigeon's speed is about 33 yards a second.

Origin of "Apple."

It is difficult to determine the specific tree which has been translated from the Hebrew word as "apple." Most modern writers maintain that it was either the quince or the citron. Orange trees are now found in Palestine, but there does not appear sufficient evidence that this tree was known in earlier times to the inhabitants of that land.

Civil war in England lasted from 1642 to 1650—eighteen years—being contemporaneous part of the time with the Thirty Years war, which divided all Germany into two opposing camps. It found the empire with a population of 16,000,000, and left it with less than 5,000,000.
